

Washington is becoming a great sport center and The Washington Times is helping to make it so. The Times sport pages cover fully the local field in all branches.

LARGE ENTRY CAUSES TWO DAYS OF PLAY IN GOLFING PRELIMINARY

By BRYAN MORSE.

Two hundred and thirty-six players, embracing the greatest golfing talent in this country, professional and amateur, with two of Britain's foremost professionals, several noted amateurs, as well as Canadian, French, and Australian players are listed among the entries for the twenty-sixth open golf championship of America. The tournament, under the auspices of the United States Golf Association, will be played at Columbia Country Club, at Chevy Chase, Md., beginning Tuesday, July 19.

The field will be split into two sections, half playing on Tuesday over eighteen holes and the other half on Wednesday over eighteen holes. The first seventy-two golfers qualifying from the field will play through seventy-two holes, eighteen on Friday and eighteen on Saturday, for the championship proper.

The Columbia Country Club has served notice that beginning tomorrow the course will be closed save for those competing in the tournament.

The names of two hundred and nineteen golfers are sent down from headquarters in New York. Seventeen additional entries have been received but are not included in the list which follows:

Cyril Hughes, Lancaster Country Club, Pennsylvania; William Macfarlane, Oak Ridge Golf Club, Tuckahoe, N. Y.; Arthur E. Reid, Arden Golf Club, Arden-on-Hudson, N. Y.; James C. Ferguson, Spring Lake Golf and Country Club, New Jersey; Jack Jolly, unattached, Newark, N. J.; Tom Boyd, Fox Hills Golf Club, Stapleton, S. I.; Frank Bellwood, Arden Golf Club, Long Island; Nelson Whitney, Reuben G. Bush, Jr., Audobon Golf Club, New Orleans, La.; Robert A. Cruckshank, Essex Country Country Club, West Orange, N. J.; Gil Nichols, unattached, Providence, R. I.; Charles H. Rowe, Emil Looffler, Oakmont Country Club, Pennsylvania; Patrick Doyle, Deal Golf Club, New Jersey; Jack Forrester, Meadow Brook Hunt Club, Westchester, N. Y.; Charles H. Rowe, Emil Looffler, Oakmont Country Club, New Jersey; R. W. Treacy, Danville Country Club, Illinois; Joseph Kirkwood, J. Victor East, Melbourne, Australia; Gunner Nelson, Lafayette Country Club, Indiana; Charles P. Betscher, Maryland Country Club, Arlington, Md.; John Golden, Tuxedo Golf Club, New York; Capt. Charles Clarke, Engineers' Country Club, Roslyn, L. I.; John Brennan, San Felipe Country Club, Del Rio, Tex.; Eugene K. McCarthy, Florida Country Club, Ortega, Fla.; Tom Skippers, Rolling Road Golf Club, Catonsville, Md.; Wilfred Thompson, Country Club, Pennsylvania; Van Edie Loe, Ravisio Country Club, Homewood, Ill.

W. V. Hoare, Tedesco Country Club, Beach Bluff, Mass.; Charles W. Hall, Country Club, Birmingham, Ala.; Charles P. Betscher, Maryland Country Club, Arlington, Md.; John Golden, Tuxedo Golf Club, New York; Capt. Charles Clarke, Engineers' Country Club, Roslyn, L. I.; John Brennan, San Felipe Country Club, Del Rio, Tex.; Eugene K. McCarthy, Florida Country Club, Ortega, Fla.; Tom Skippers, Rolling Road Golf Club, Catonsville, Md.; Wilfred Thompson, Country Club, Pennsylvania; Van Edie Loe, Ravisio Country Club, Homewood, Ill.

John Cowan, Oakley Country Club, Watertown, Mass.; Fred Baroni, Mount Helge Country Club, Chesapeake, Pa.; Eddie Meyers, Aetna Country Club, Providence, R. I.; George Darnback, Agawam Hunt Club, Providence, R. I.; Grantland Rice, Englishman Country Club, New York City; Carl Anderson, Bronxville, N. Y.; Frank Cooper, Columbia Golf Club, New Jersey; Fred McLeod, E. Arty Banagan, Columbia Country Club, Washington, D. C.; Joseph Stein, Nashua Country Club, New Hampshire; Fred Brand, Allegheny Country Club, Sewickley, Pa.; George Kerrigan, White Beecher Golf and Country Club, Connecticut; James E. Davis, Jr., William C. Bahlantyne, Columbia Country Club, Washington, D. C.; Thomas J. Harmon, Jr., Hudson River Country Club, Yonkers, N. Y.; R. L. Finkens, Columbia Country Club, Washington, D. C.; Tom Burke, River Crest Club, Fort Worth, Tex.; Gene Sarazen, Titusville Country Club, Pennsylvania.

Park, Mount Bruno Golf Club, Montreal, Can.; Al Watrous, Red Run Golf Club, Royal Oak, Mich.; Bill Scott, Baltimore Country Club, Roland Park, Md.; Frank McNamara, Cherry Valley Golf Club, City, N. Y.; John A. Park, Maidstone Club, Easthampton, N. Y.; A. J. Sanderson, Sleepy Hollow Country Club, Scarborough, N. Y.; John J. Farrell, Quaker Ridge Golf Club, Mamaroneck, N. Y.; Harry Ketchum, South Shore Golf Club, Bay Shore, N. Y.; Frank Miller, Homestead Golf Club, Danvers, Mass.; Fred G. Canava, West Point Golf Club, New York.

LOANS HORNING DIAMONDS, WATCHES, JEWELRY South End of Highway Bridge

WASHINGTON TIMES SPORTS

The Bull Killed the Butcher

Copyright, 1921, by Newspaper Feature Service. Great Britain Rights Reserved.

CORBETT DECLARES HITTING IN CLINCHES HURTS BOXING

By JAMES J. CORBETT.

NEW YORK, July 9.—The old custom of holding and hitting should be legislated out of boxing. Sooner or later, just as sure as my name is Jim, this method of fighting will get the game into ill repute and it is up to those who sponsor boxing in the various States to start a campaign against it. It's getting so that the boxer who by nature is clever becomes discouraged. What's the use of being clever when a slower and perhaps a more rugged opponent, who would be easy for the clever boxer, can walk into him, clinch with one hand and pummel the daylight out of him with the other.

The Dempsey-Carpentier fight furnished an example. I am not mentioning this with the thought of taking anything from Dempsey's victory or criticizing him in the slightest. Nor am I making any attempt to smooth out any part of Carpentier's defeat. But there is an illustration here.

STRENGTH VS. SKILL. Carpentier surprised every one by the kind of a fight he made. When he walked into Dempsey and started fighting him at his own game even the champion was nonplussed. But that was what Dempsey wanted. He simply advanced to meet the challenger with both hands held in readiness to start working like piston rods in close quarters and about half the time the champion belted Carpentier in the very first round.

Carpentier, of course, tried to do the same but he had not the strength to cope with Dempsey and got the worst of it. In fact, Georges was badly hurt in the very first round. Had I been in Francois Desamps' shoes as manager of the Frenchman, I would have demanded, when the match was first made, that holding and hitting in the clinches must be barred altogether. I'll admit that Jack and Georges made no trouble for Referee Ertle. They broke through and asked to do so, but they got hit in the clinches. Carpentier made a mistake by not clinching close to Dempsey in the clinches instead of bowing his back and giving Dempsey an ideal target for his punches.

No doubt if he had it to do over again Georges would fight quite differently and he would demand that the business of hitting with one arm free be put under the ban.

Club, Buffalo, N. Y.; Joe Matthews, Mission Hills Country Club, Kansas City, Mo.; William Crey, Hillcrest Club, Kansas City, Mo.; J. W. Keeney, Birmingham Golf Club, Birmingham, Mich.; Willie O'Leary, Worcester Country Club, Worcester, Mass.; Henry J. Topping, Greenwich Country Club, Greenwich, Conn.; Thomas D. Armour, Scotland; Joseph W. Swetser, Ardley Club, Ardley-on-Hudson, N. Y.; James A. Kennedy, Kansas City, Mo.; George Artyon, Kahawaki Golf Club, Montreal, Can.; H. H. Beckett, Cap City Country Club, Atlanta, Ga.; Jack Hutchins, Glen View Golf Club, Chicago, Ill.; Walter Hagen, New York, N. Y.; Charles Hoffman, Philadelphia, Pa.; Emmet French, Youngtown Country Club, Youngstown, Ohio; William McNeill, Shreveport Country Club, Shreveport, La.; Tom Kerrigan, Sivanoy Country Club, Mt. Vernon, N. Y.; Clarence H. Hackney, Country Club of Atlantic City, Atlantic City, N. J.; William Reid, Wilmington Country Club, Wilmington, Del.; Barnes, Pelham Country Club, Pelham, N. Y.; Alex. Chisholm, Portland Country Club, Portland, Me.; Tom Edward, East Palestine, Ohio; Dan Kenny, Olean Country Club, Olean, N. Y.; F. A. Goddard, Jr., Nashville Golf and Country Club, Nashville, Tenn.; Charles Evans, Jr., Edgewater Golf Club, Chicago, Ill.; Tom Stevens, Minneapolis, Minn.; Jack Burke, Town and Country Club, St. Paul, Minn.; Har. Cowie, Bethlehem Country Club, Bethlehem, N. H.

Central High Track Team Manager Is Going to Penn

Karl E. Jarrell, successful handler of Central High School's track team, is going to Pennsylvania after he has spent the summer in the service of the United States Coast and Geodetic Survey.

EMPIRE CITY RESULTS

FIRST RACE—Run Star, 114 (Metcalfe), 6 to 1, 2 to 1, even, won; Akum, 14 (Sander), 3 to 1, 4 to 1, 5 to 1, second; Clough Jordan, 114 (Carroll), 2 to 1, third; Plenie, Wild Dove, Mad Nail, Draft, Daniel A. and Nose Dive also ran.

SECOND RACE—Thunderclap, 126 (Sander), 2 to 1, out, won; Krewer, 117 (Fowler), out, second; Dimmesdale, 106 (Turner), 2 to 1, third; L'Esclair, Thunderstorm, Houyhnhnm also ran.

THIRD RACE—Despair, 100 (Callahan), 3 to 1, even, 2 to 1, won; Cum Sah, 109 (Fator), 3 to 1, 4 to 1, 5 to 1, second; Wallinder, 100 (Penman), 4 to 1, third; Sea Cove, Courtship also ran.

FOURTH RACE—Yellow Hand, 115 (Miller), 5 to 1, 3 to 1, 2 to 1, won; Audacious, 129 (Kummer), 1 to 2, 1 to 1, second; Mad Matter, 132 (Sander), 1 to 1, third; Lanlus, Blazes also ran.

FIFTH RACE—Devastation, 116 (Kummer), 11 to 1, 5 to 1, 4 to 1, won; Joek Scot, 114 (Sander), 2 to 1, 3 to 1, second; American Boy 110 (Babin), 8 to 1, third; Queen Blonde, Trooper, Episoda, Claque, Fantouche also ran.

SIXTH RACE—Morvich, 116 (Kough), 9 to 1, out, won; Sideral, 109 (Kealey), 1 to 1, 2 to 1, second; Missionary, 106 (Schuttlinger), out, third; Nose Dive also ran.

LAJOIE ROUNDS UP 17 OLD BASEBALL STARS

CLEVELAND, July 9.—Nap Lajoie, for years premier second baseman of the American League and the idol of the Cleveland fans, has seventeen veteran ball players lined up for the "Old Timers" game, which is to be one of the features of Cleveland's 125th anniversary celebration, July 22 to 30. Lajoie's latest recruits are Bobby Wallace, who is coming from Independence, Kan.; George Cuyper, from Elkhart, Ind.; Charlie Hickman, from Morgantown, W. Va.; and Neal Ball, from New Haven, Conn. Some time ago "Fleetsfoot" Harry Bay sent word from Peoria, Ill., that he would be here. Cy Young, the only big league pitcher ever known to win 500 games in a professional career, sent word from Paoli, Ohio, that he would pitch, and pitch nine innings.

Opponents for the "Old Timers" have not been definitely selected.

DEMPSEY LIKELY TO TAKE ON JESS WILLARD NEXT

By SID MERCER.

Jack Dempsey's next opponent in a championship bout will probably be Jess Willard. He is willing, however, to meet Harry Wills or Tom Gibbons.

Tex Rickard may bring Willard back for an encounter with Dempsey in the Jersey City arena on Labor Day. It will be remembered that Tex signed the Pottawatomie giant to box Dempsey here last spring, and when that bout was called off there was an understanding that the match would be made again for the fall if Dempsey toppled Carpentier over.

There is no immediate prospect of a match between Dempsey and Tom Gibbons.

No less an authority than Eddie Kane, manager of the St. Paul heavyweight, is responsible for this statement.

"Dempsey is a terrific puncher," Kane admitted, "but Tom can hit just as hard. Tom will surely beat Carpentier if they ever meet."

"Tom will be the next to give Dempsey a real battle. Willard is a joke. But I won't agree to Tom meeting Dempsey before next summer. Why? Because it takes time for one great fight to die down and to work up interest in another. Tom will knock over some of the other boys and then we'll go after Dempsey."

The general opinion is that a Dempsey-Gibbons match will not be taken seriously unless Gibbons beats some good men in the next few months.

A match between Gibbons and Bill Brennan might furnish the "big fight" in the lobby of the Belmont, Dempsey says Brennan is the best man he has ever fought.

A MODEST CHAMPION. Dempsey is a modest champion. He is too sensitive himself to carry his attempts to obtain privacy to the point of rudeness, but since the fight he has been less accessible than he was in training.

Saturday night, while well-wishers and anxious interlopers were milling around in the lobby of the Belmont, the champion hid himself in a rear room of his suite upstairs and chatted quietly with a few intimate friends.

He came in from Jersey about 8 o'clock, accompanied by his manager and Mayor Ed Bader, of Atlantic City. There wasn't a mark on him. The first thing he did was to change his clothes and order a barber to come to the room. Then he called a waiter and ordered dinner for six.

Only when pressed did Jack talk about the fight.

His first expression was one of resentment.

"Well, I wonder what will say now. He didn't leave himself an out."

"Did he hurt you with that right?" inquired Warren Brown.

"Well, it's a funny thing about that," replied Jack as he receipted the bill. "I believe I made up my mind to test one of his rights but to play safe by taking the sock as I was going away. I saw it coming but miscalculated my footing. The floor of the ring was covered with a thick layer of felt padding under the canvas. It was softer going than I had been used to at Alport. Perhaps that was what made me look slow. The first round I had the impression that I was treading a thick, soft rug."

THE DECISIVE MOMENT. "Anyhow, I didn't give with the blow as I intended to and I got it right on the button. Maybe it staggered me for a moment, but my impression was that I was slightly off balance when I was struck."

"I said, 'Well, old boy, if that's as hard as you can sock I can take it.'"

LATONIA RESULTS

FIRST RACE—Free Cutter, 116 (Lyke), $7.90, $3.60, $3, won; Clintonville, 117 (Garner), $3, $2.50, second; Green Grass, 110 (Roberts), $4.50, third; Rising Rock, George Starr, Rapid Day also ran.

SECOND RACE—Fegasus, 109 (Garner), $4.80, $2.50, $2.50, won; Sliphalation, 112 (McAttee), $3.10, $2.30, second; Fucose, 109 (Lyke), $2.50, third; Wadsworth's Last, Blarney Stone also ran.

THIRD RACE—Whirling Dun, 115 (Lunaford), $9.50, $3.70, $4.70, won; Had Her Way, 90 (Scobie), $13.10, $7, second; Kingfisher, 110 (Roberts), $7.50, third; Whippet, Adella v. Sir Nancy Wyatt, Jacobson, Lee Widrig, Wadsworth Last, Blarney Stone also ran.

FOURTH RACE—Youness, 115 (Lyke), $9.30, $4.80, $3.50, won; Gipsy Queen, 104 (Francis), $5.00, $3.30, second; Col. Taylor, 113 (Scobie), $5.00, third; Marjorie McKay, Twinkle Blue, Nancy Wyatt, Jacobson, Lee Widrig, To Althy, Loyalist, Basil, also ran.

FIFTH RACE—Best Pal, 119 (Lyke), $22.40, $10.10, $6.20, won; La Rabie, 106 (McAttee), $11.50, $6.50, second; Extremist, 133 (Haynes), $3.50, third; Lady Madcap, 112 (Midway, Firebrand, Attababy 2d, Woodtrap, Sande of Pleasure, The Porter, also ran.

SIXTH RACE—Sir Hugh, 113 (Garner), $4.10, $3.50, $2.80, won; Granite Wars, 113 (Lunaford), $7.70, $5.10, second; Wayward Lady, 110 (Connelly), $5.20, third; Palm, The Colonel's Lady, Orma Dale, Red Lead, Nancy Palm, Saddle and Boots, Adventure, Billy Brush also ran.

SEVENTH RACE—Blanche Mac, 93 (Fields), won; Brotherly Love, 110 (Connelly), second; Paris Maid, 114 (Garner), third; General Hais, Redmont, Donna Loretta, Ben Valet, Mint Cat also ran.

gested that the champ receive a visitor Jack replied "sure."

"I don't want to offend anybody," he said plaintively, "but I feel like I want to get away by myself. I've been in jail for a few weeks, you know."

And later he did get away—all by himself. He let himself out of a rear door, popped out of the side of the Belmont, where "Louis," his chauffeur, was waiting and went for a ride.

It had been reported that night that Dempsey was to be married.

"I wish they wouldn't call that stuff on me," he complained earlier in the evening. "I want them to forget me for a few days. Now they say I'm going to be married in the morning. What will they say next?"

Dempsey refers to his defamers as "they." He seldom singles out any of them for specific complaint.

THE HYPNOTIC GLANCE. "That's a laugh," chuckled Kearns. "Desamps came over to our corner and made a roar about the bandages. He bent down and looked into the eye, but there was no hypnotism in his glance. It didn't worry Jack. Barney and I stood well back in the ring while Carpentier's gloves were being fitted on or close."

"Desamps was more excited than his fighter. When Ertle finished his count over Georges, neither Desamps nor Wilson got into the ring quickly. I had to go over and help Ertle drag the Frenchman to his corner."

The champ came back and piped all hands to dinner in another room. "The cats are ready," he said. "We're having some things I missed in training."

However, it was a simple meal—oyster cocktails, squab and alligator pear salad. Nobody wanted dessert or coffee.

The mob milled around in the hall. Kearns and Teddy Hayes held the front entrance while Dempsey dined. Presently Teddy brought back two Chicago aldermen. Any time Hayes suggested that the champ receive a visitor Jack replied "sure."

"I don't want to offend anybody," he said plaintively, "but I feel like I want to get away by myself. I've been in jail for a few weeks, you know."

And later he did get away—all by himself. He let himself out of a rear door, popped out of the side of the Belmont, where "Louis," his chauffeur, was waiting and went for a ride.

It had been reported that night that Dempsey was to be married.

"I wish they wouldn't call that stuff on me," he complained earlier in the evening. "I want them to forget me for a few days. Now they say I'm going to be married in the morning. What will they say next?"

Dempsey refers to his defamers as "they." He seldom singles out any of them for specific complaint.

THE HYPNOTIC GLANCE. "That's a laugh," chuckled Kearns. "Desamps came over to our corner and made a roar about the bandages. He bent down and looked into the eye, but there was no hypnotism in his glance. It didn't worry Jack. Barney and I stood well back in the ring while Carpentier's gloves were being fitted on or close."

"Desamps was more excited than his fighter. When Ertle finished his count over Georges, neither Desamps nor Wilson got into the ring quickly. I had to go over and help Ertle drag the Frenchman to his corner."

The champ came back and piped all hands to dinner in another room. "The cats are ready," he said. "We're having some things I missed in training."

However, it was a simple meal—oyster cocktails, squab and alligator pear salad. Nobody wanted dessert or coffee.

The mob milled around in the hall. Kearns and Teddy Hayes held the front entrance while Dempsey dined. Presently Teddy brought back two Chicago aldermen. Any time Hayes suggested that the champ receive a visitor Jack replied "sure."

"I don't want to offend anybody," he said plaintively, "but I feel like I want to get away by myself. I've been in jail for a few weeks, you know."

And later he did get away—all by himself. He let himself out of a rear door, popped out of the side of the Belmont, where "Louis," his chauffeur, was waiting and went for a ride.

It had been reported that night that Dempsey was to be married.

"I wish they wouldn't call that stuff on me," he complained earlier in the evening. "I want them to forget me for a few days. Now they say I'm going to be married in the morning. What will they say next?"

Dempsey refers to his defamers as "they." He seldom singles out any of them for specific complaint.

THE HYPNOTIC GLANCE. "That's a laugh," chuckled Kearns. "Desamps came over to our corner and made a roar about the bandages. He bent down and looked into the eye, but there was no hypnotism in his glance. It didn't worry Jack. Barney and I stood well back in the ring while Carpentier's gloves were being fitted on or close."

"Desamps was more excited than his fighter. When Ertle finished his count over Georges, neither Desamps nor Wilson got into the ring quickly. I had to go over and help Ertle drag the Frenchman to his corner."

The champ came back and piped all hands to dinner in another room. "The cats are ready," he said. "We're having some things I missed in training."

However, it was a simple meal—oyster cocktails, squab and alligator pear salad. Nobody wanted dessert or coffee.

The mob milled around in the hall. Kearns and Teddy Hayes held the front entrance while Dempsey dined. Presently Teddy brought back two Chicago aldermen. Any time Hayes suggested that the champ receive a visitor Jack replied "sure."

"I don't want to offend anybody," he said plaintively, "but I feel like I want to get away by myself. I've been in jail for a few weeks, you know."

And later he did get away—all by himself. He let himself out of a rear door, popped out of the side of the Belmont, where "Louis," his chauffeur, was waiting and went for a ride.

It had been reported that night that Dempsey was to be married.

"I wish they wouldn't call that stuff on me," he complained earlier in the evening. "I want them to forget me for a few days. Now they say I'm going to be married in the morning. What will they say next?"

Dempsey refers to his defamers as "they." He seldom singles out any of them for specific complaint.

THE HYPNOTIC GLANCE. "That's a laugh," chuckled Kearns. "Desamps came over to our corner and made a roar about the bandages. He bent down and looked into the eye, but there was no hypnotism in his glance. It didn't worry Jack. Barney and I stood well back in the ring while Carpentier's gloves were being fitted on or close."

"Desamps was more excited than his fighter. When Ertle finished his count over Georges, neither Desamps nor Wilson got into the ring quickly. I had to go over and help Ertle drag the Frenchman to his corner."

The champ came back and piped all hands to dinner in another room. "The cats are ready," he said. "We're having some things I missed in training."

However, it was a simple meal—oyster cocktails, squab and alligator pear salad. Nobody wanted dessert or coffee.

The mob milled around in the hall. Kearns and Teddy Hayes held the front entrance while Dempsey dined. Presently Teddy brought back two Chicago aldermen. Any time Hayes suggested that the champ receive a visitor Jack replied "sure."

"I don't want to offend anybody," he said plaintively, "but I feel like I want to get away by myself. I've been in jail for a few weeks, you know."

And later he did get away—all by himself. He let himself out of a rear door, popped out of the side of the Belmont, where "Louis," his chauffeur, was waiting and went for a ride.

It had been reported that night that Dempsey was to be married.

"I wish they wouldn't call that stuff on me," he complained earlier in the evening. "I want them to forget me for a few days. Now they say I'm going to be married in the morning. What will they say next?"

Dempsey refers to his defamers as "they." He seldom singles out any of them for specific complaint.

THE HYPNOTIC GLANCE. "That's a laugh," chuckled Kearns. "Desamps came over to our corner and made a roar about the bandages. He bent down and looked into the eye, but there was no hypnotism in his glance. It didn't worry Jack. Barney and I stood well back in the ring while Carpentier's gloves were being fitted on or close."

"Desamps was more excited than his fighter. When Ertle finished his count over Georges, neither Desamps nor Wilson got into the ring quickly. I had to go over and help Ertle drag the Frenchman to his corner."

The champ came back and piped all hands to dinner in another room. "The cats are ready," he said. "We're having some things I missed in training."

However, it was a simple meal—oyster cocktails, squab and alligator pear salad. Nobody wanted dessert or coffee.

The mob milled around in the hall. Kearns and Teddy Hayes held the front entrance while Dempsey dined. Presently Teddy brought back two Chicago aldermen. Any time Hayes suggested that the champ receive a visitor Jack replied "sure."

"I don't want to offend anybody," he said plaintively, "but I feel like I want to get away by myself. I've been in jail for a few weeks, you know."

And later he did get away—all by himself. He let himself out of a rear door, popped out of the side of the Belmont, where "Louis," his chauffeur, was waiting and went for a ride.

It had been reported that night that Dempsey was to be married.

"I wish they wouldn't call that stuff on me," he complained earlier in the evening. "I want them to forget me for a few days. Now they say I'm going to be married in the morning. What will they say next?"

Dempsey refers to his defamers as "they." He seldom singles out any of them for specific complaint.

THE HYPNOTIC GLANCE. "That's a laugh," chuckled Kearns. "Desamps came over to our corner and made a roar about the bandages. He bent down and looked into the eye, but there was no hypnotism in his glance. It didn't worry Jack. Barney and I stood well back in the ring while Carpentier's gloves were being fitted on or close."

"Desamps was more excited than his fighter. When Ertle finished his count over Georges, neither Desamps nor Wilson got into the ring quickly. I had to go over and help Ertle drag the Frenchman to his corner."

The champ came back and piped all hands to dinner in another room. "The cats are ready," he said. "We're having some things I missed in training."

However, it was a simple meal—oyster cocktails, squab and alligator pear salad. Nobody wanted dessert or coffee.

The mob milled around in the hall. Kearns and Teddy Hayes held the front entrance while Dempsey dined. Presently Teddy brought back two Chicago aldermen. Any time Hayes suggested that the champ receive a visitor Jack replied "sure."

"I don't want to offend anybody," he said plaintively, "but I feel like I want to get away by myself. I've been in jail for a few weeks, you know."

And later he did get away—all by himself. He let himself out of a rear door, popped out of the side of the Belmont, where "Louis," his chauffeur, was waiting and went for a ride.

It had been reported that night that Dempsey was to be married.

"I wish they wouldn't call that stuff on me," he complained earlier in the evening. "I want them to forget me for a few days. Now they say I'm going to be married in the morning. What will they say next?"

Dempsey refers to his defamers as "they." He seldom singles out any of them for specific complaint.

THE HYPNOTIC GLANCE. "That's a laugh," chuckled Kearns. "Desamps came over to our corner and made a roar about the bandages. He bent down and looked into the eye, but there was no hypnotism in his glance. It didn't worry Jack. Barney and I stood well back in the ring while Carpentier's gloves were being fitted on or close."

"Desamps was more excited than his fighter. When Ertle finished his count over Georges, neither Desamps nor Wilson got into the ring quickly. I had to go over and help Ertle drag the Frenchman to his corner."

The champ came back and piped all hands to dinner in another room. "The cats are ready," he said. "We're having some things I missed in training."

However, it was a simple meal—oyster cocktails, squab and alligator pear salad. Nobody wanted dessert or coffee.